

Abandon—Not Augment—State Riding Trail

A group of desert boosters went before the Board of Supervisors recently, favoring a new trail on the desert side of the San Bernardino mountains.

The project was opposed by a landowner in the Coon Creek vicinity who doesn't want public hunting across his private canyon.

Why this impractical trail was ever built is a long story but two reasons can be stated: (1) The state Legislature was sold on the fallacious idea that a Mexico-Oregon trail would be popular.

The supervisors should not be unduly impressed by delegations wearing riding boots, Stetson hats and talking big.

Businessmen evidently do not think all this will end soon. Their betting on the future took the form of $35 billion spent in 1956 on new factories and plant facilities.

When you drive by Kaiser City on the San Bernardino freeway, you soon come in the vicinity of the Vima Vista City Center, the first big planned residential city in this industrial city for a city

That was in the mind of the Pomona Progress Bulletin writer, perhaps, who recalled that a dozen years ago this same company bought from the College of Medical Evangelists the large tract immediately west of Pomona, between the railroad and the south hills.

Pigeon racing has fallen upon difficult times. A new item in the hobby days said that in various places in the southwest the birds seem to have lost their lustre of direction.

The Ontario City Council is considering a city ordinance which would prohibit the raising of racing birds in the town. This ordinance would prohibit the raising of various residential areas to raise and sell such birds.

Aviz Hotel Is Lisbon Regarded by Travelers As Finest In World

By Frederick G. Othman

LISBON, PORTUGAL. The Aviz Hotel was on the Avenue of the Fontaines is regarded by those travelers fortunate enough to get into it as the finest in the world. Here the sheets are pure linen, hand-embroidered ruffled. Moths are served on plates of treamont chutney, and when a guest dreads a wine glass or the mishap, but a tragedy. The drinker of wine is served with a glass of "if you'll excuse the word" for one of his drinks.

The service is no extra special. There you a creepy feeling; at best it is a little more than a little. There are so many employees, mostly in uniform, that it is like a glove, that a customer gets his hair's even though about a half-hourly appointment. The best possible cook and was going to re-open the dining room.

The Aviz is exclusive. It also Aviz had to get into it. The Aviz is exclusive. It also Aviz had to get into it. The Aviz is exclusive. It also Aviz had to get into it.

Diabetics' Lives Depend On Careful Treatment

By Edwin F. Jordan, M.D.

I have just received a letter from a patient who is suffering from diabetes. He is asking me for advice on how to manage his condition.

The first symptoms of diabetes are not particularly striking. Loss of weight, thirst, and frequent urination are the most common signs.
