SPCA, Humane Society Inspect Burros

PIONEERTOWN — Sixty burros, which will be competing in the 12th annual National Burro Derby starting Aug. 5, were inspected here Tuesday by officials of the Los Angeles Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the Southern California Humane Society.

Pronouncing the animals in good physical shape were George M. Crosier, general manager of the two societies, and Clyde P. Miles, chief investigator and state humane officer. The officials also oversee the association's programs for caring and equipping the burros, loading and unloading the animals at the start and finish of each day, etc.

On hand to go over all details of the three-day race and handling of the animals were William Snedigar, Big Bear Lake, president of the Old Miner's Association, Inc.; Robert Freeman, Big Bear Lake, publisher-editor of the "Old Miner's Gazette"; and Samuel A. Moore, Pioneertown activities chairman.

Miles will be in charge of the Humane Society detail which will accompany the wranglers and burros, it was stated. Two of his men will cover the field on horseback. In addition, it was reported, an officer from Barstow's United Humane Society will also participate.

The Old Miner's Association of Big Bear Lake and Old Miner's Association of Pioneertown, cosponsors of the burro derby, are anxious to clarify some of the confusion and misconceptions on the part of animal-lovers who have protested the race on the grounds that it was a form of cruelty to animals. This is definitely not the case as the association's rules and regulations and those drawn up by the LASPCA and Southern California Humane Society are strictly enforced. If there are infractions of the rules the wrangler will be disqualified and fined.

Each burro in the race must be sponsored. As each wrangler and sponsor signs up, he is provided with the four-page rules and regulations from the association and the one-page rules and regulations from the society.

Regarding the treatment of the burros, the association's rules state: "Burros shall not be treated with brutality or abuse under any conditions, mechanical or electrical "gimmicks" or other means which injure or abuse a burro, are strictly forbidden. The making of noise is permitted if it is not offensive to other wranglers or passers-by, or if it does not interfere with another person's burro. In no event shall noise be of harsh or unreasonable nature, such as cannon shots, gunshots or horn-honking. Burros may be coaxed with the use of food."

Further protection is afforded by the society's rules, which state: "Pack must be done properly with adequate padding so as to prevent rubbing and causing raw sores, and pack must not exceed current weight of approximately 15 pounds. Rope halter and lead must be used on each burro entered in race.

"No instruments or gimmicks of any type may be used to force the burros to walk in the race, and wranglers may not use the end of the lead rope to whip the burro, which may cause bruising. Food, however, may be used to coax the burros along the trail of the race. All wranglers to be given a copy of the rules and regulations regarding the race, and particularly all rules governing the manner in which the burros are to be handled during the race.

"Should it become necessary to disqualify any entry in the race due to misuse of the burro, the decision of the state humane officer of the SPCA will be final. This in no way, however, is to be construed as interference with other rules and regulations as set forth by the Association governing the race. The Old Miner's Association must accept all such rules and regulations as set forth and same be entered in the minutes of the Board of Directors, and a copy of the minutes of the Board be submitted to the SPCA signed by the president and secretary of the Association."

Punitive action has been taken into account in the case of any infraction of regulations, provide: "The willful violations of rules and regulations by wranglers and/or sponsors will warrant punitive action. This action may be as follows: (1) Verbal warning (2) 15-minute time forfeiture (3) 30-minute time forfeiture (4) One-hour time forfeiture (5) Disqualification or elimination.

"Officials wearing badges will note infractions of rules and regulations and at any time may give verbal warnings. If the incident is of a nature which warrants greater penalty action than a warning, the official will immediately advise the wrangler of the violation witnessed by him, and the official will advise further that action may be taken. The official will immediately present the case to the judges.

"A panel of five judges (each wearing an arm band of distinctive color) will make punitive decisions for each day of the race. Their names will be announced prior to each day's start. Judges will have full authority to render decisions on all infractions of rules and regulations, and their decisions will be final. Their authority applies to all matters ruled by common sense and decency and to any situation which might have not covered by official rules and regulations."

The winning wranglers, who obviously exhibited good sportsmanship all the way, will be rewarded by cash prizes. Final first place winner will receive $500; second place, $200; third place, $100; and the next seven places, $20 each.

In addition, daily cash prizes will be awarded as follows: 1st place, $20; 2nd place, $15; 3rd place, $10; and the next seven places, $5.

And, as an added incentive, a daily cash prize will be awarded for PHYSICALLY completing each day of the race at $10 for EACH COMPLETED DAY. The association also will award place trophies to the first three finalists and finalists trophies to all the others.

Following the burro inspection, Moore announced that four more contestants have been added to the "Miss Burro" Contest which closes Friday night. They are Susan Miller, of Yucca Valley; Marion Bonser, "Cactus Kate" and Baby Doyle, all of Pioneertown. The girl accounting for the most votes, at ten cents a vote, will be crowned at the Coronation Ball in Pioneertown on Saturday, July 31, and will reign over Pioneertown Days, the Burro Derby and Old Miner's Days at Big Bear Lake.

Stormy Final Year

Trustees in Barstow Spar Over Expenses

By TOM PERCY
Sun-Telegram Staff Writer

BARSTOW — One-two punches delivered by Melvin Hill, newly returned to the Barstow Union High School - College board of trustees, and Robert J. Speth, a veteran board member fighting, served notice Tuesday night that the 81st final year of HUHS district government will not be a tranquil one.

With the district scheduled to turn over the high school and college to the new unified district a year from now, some people thought the stormy days were behind for the high school district and attendance at trustee meetings would fall off.

But any hopes for a peaceful demise for the district were shattered Tuesday night when Speth hurled the charge of "lies" and drew an angry rejoinder from Dr. C. Dean Hammans, immediate past president of the board and a man rarely ruffled.

The session also drew a carefully - prepared rebuttal from Dr. James L. Prince, district superintendent, to recently-filed charges — usually anonymously — circulated — of excessive administrative staffing and the first offer of a public explanation as to why he voted against hiring Charles F. Boyle, former University of Illinois football player and Tulsa high school coach, as Barstow HUSD head football coach.

Speth said that it had nothing to do with the fact that Boyle is from Oklahoma but because of the way his salary had been increased through extra assignments. Speth did not explain, however, why he had also voted at the same meeting against hiring a second Tulsa coach — Arthur G. Davis — and abstained from approving the employment of another Oklahoma man—John F. Gwartney—as a special education teacher.

The only additional compensa- a point of the fact that he had to tion that Davis is to get is that secured the figures on the dwindling surplus from the county regularly scheduled for coaching duties, while Gwartney was hired in on the regular schedule.

Speth's comments on his disagreeing vote came in the middle of his speech in which he said that would forbid any expenditures or commitments beyond budgeted amounts without prior board approval.

In arguing for his resolution—which will be voted on at the next meeting of the board — Speth complained anew at the piecemeal manner in which the track improvement at the high school was presented to the board, labeling one presentation a "lie."

Hammans, describing the track project as a "great" improvement, flashed at one point and asked: "Do you think the majority of this board was dishonest?"

As was repeatedly explained at board meetings, the track project was submitted for piecemeal approval by the board in order to circumvent the requirement that it be put out to bid since it thus allow the district to do the work with its own personnel.

Norman Smith, board presi-dent, pointed out that much of the spending to improve the district "was done in a single year" and was aimed at securing a full five-year accreditation of the high school. He noted that the high school had been awarded five-year accreditation — "the best we can get."

The high school's diminishing reserve — which has slid from more than 600,000 three years to slightly over $200,000 now — is expected to very nearly vanish in the coming year — drew Trustee Hill, who declared:

"If I were a unified board member, I would be a little bit leery about turning over a bankrupt district."

In his presentation, Hill made

Taxpayers' Assn. Suggests

Supervisors Consider Employes Parking Fee

The Board of Supervisors has taken under consideration a plan by the County Taxpayers' Association to charge county employes for use of county parking lots.

The plan for a $5 per month fee for employees parking in county-owned lots was among a group of items presented by the association as a means of improving the tax rate.

No action was taken on the matter, and presumably it is the items which will come up again today in the discussion preparatory to adoption of the 1965-66 budget.

The recommendation by the Taxpayers' Association was passed over the signature of Stephen P. Rehwald indicated the move might save as much as a penny on the tax rate. Administrative Officer Robert A. Covington said the amount would be much less.

Covington said he would study the matter but declared he would be in any position to make a

Needles Has New Deputy City Clerk

NEEDLES — The Needles City Council has selected John D. Lidin, 32, as its new deputy city clerk.

Lidin is a graduate of Lasalle University in Chicago, Ill. and has attended business college in Billings, Mont. He is working toward a law degree. His wife, Joyce, and daughter, Jayne, 3, per age five, will join Lidin around Aug. 1 when his duties begin.

He was formerly employed as the chief deputy of the clerk of district court in Billings.

The acting city clerk is Judge F. P. Wilkin, under whom Lidin will serve for one year before assuming his role as city clerk.

The next city council meeting will be Aug. 2.

Boy Falls 200 Feet on Motorbike

VICTORVILLE — Warren Angel, 14, was recovering yesterday at St. Mary Mesert Valley Hospital from multiple injuries suffered when he and his motorbike tumbled down a 200-foot canyon in upper Deep Creek.

He suffered a broken right ankle, fractured rib and numerous cuts and bruises, said his father, Robert W. Angel, 14221 Indian Creek Place, Victorville.

Riding along the lip of an old dirt access ditch on the slopes of the ravine, about 9 a.m. Tuesday, young Angel and his machine dropped off and tumbled to the bottom.

A fellow rider, David Chilly, called for help to Jerry Downey and Robert Baldridge, hunting nearby, and the three brought the injured boy "about a mile" to the road, said his father.

45 Children In Sixth Week Of Head Start

TWENTYNINE PALMS — In addition to classroom preparation, the student teams have had their sixth week of instruction and next Monday, as Operation Head Start nears the close of its seven-week program. Teaching Principal Mrs. Ella M. Vigil stresses the rewarding experience this has been for the faculty.

Mrs. Mary Kelley and Miss Shelly Saladin, Mrs. Mary Wise, and Miss Trudy Grether, teaching assistants, work with Mrs. Vigil in preparing the 4 to 6-year-olds, of below-average income families for situations they will confront when they begin formal schooling.

The Blessed Sacramen School has lent its facilities to this program as a part of the federal antipoverty plan. Federal funds also allow for transportation for the children.

The program is designed to help underprivileged children equip themselves to compete on an equal basis with their peers when they begin formal schooling. Teachers and objects familiar to the children are often strange and frightening to those children.

The Upland resident was also a passenger in an auto that struck a power pole at Euclid Avenue and 22nd Street. Mrs. Buford suffered multiple lacerations of the head and possible injury to the left eye.

The driver, Lynette Beckley, 22, Hollywood, is in satisfactory condition with a fractured jaw and cuts in her left leg.

Police quoted Miss Beckley as saying she didn't remember any thing. She was awful sleepy and must have fallen asleep."

The car was northbound on a week of study has been a week-long training program under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Goodman. The program was an extension of the University of California at Riverside, and was held at the Redlands University campus.

The children were conducted through the Joshua Tree National Monument on Friday, and another field trip is scheduled to the Whitewater Fish Hatheries.

On Tuesday, July 20, 110 teachers and volunteers of Project Head Start from San Bernardino and Riverside counties met for dinner in Redlands. Eldon Addison, director of elementary curriculum of San Bernardino City Unified School District, was speaker. Informative tables broke into small groups to discuss various aspects of the program.

Prior to the opening of Head Start on June 28, the teachers received instruction from consultants in the fields of nutrition, medicine, psychology, welfare art, music, and others, in a

Speaker Blames Apathy For Government Growth

A Liberty Amendment supporter yesterday cited apathy, charlatanism and a broad interpretation of the Constitution as the primary reasons for the widening scope of the federal government today.

Speaking to a luncheon meeting of the downtown Kiwanis Club, Mrs. Ted L. Cranford, co-chairman of the San Bernardino City Liberty Amendment Committee, said, "The Constitution is so broadly interpreted that the government now can do anything that is not specifically prohibited."

Backing up her comment on apathy and charlatanism, she said, "We are sacrificing our freedoms for the common good."

Mrs. Cranford told the audi-ence that the Liberty Amendment is designed to restrain the powers of the federal government and to repeal the 16th Amendment, which deals with income tax.

Old Miners' Day Event

Old Fashioned Dress Takes Clementine Show's Honors

BIG BEAR LAKE — The three-shebang portion of the Bonanza Days Old Miners' Day celebration in Big Bear Lake Village was the setting for the Clementine Fashion Show held Sunday afternoon. The contest was the first in a series of events to take place during the coming weeks in conjunction with the annual Old Miners' Days.

Master of ceremonies was John Dehner, well known as "Commodore Stinson" on "The Baileys of Balboa" television series.

Judges for the seven divisions were Stacey Harris and Eileen Barbor, both familiar faces to movie-goers and TV viewers, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pruitt of Ontario. Pruitt is a past president of the California Mule Association.

The theme of the show was "Fashions of Yesterday and Today." Local models displayed modern dress for day-time, date-time and school wear as a change of pace from the Clementine costumes entered in the contest.

Andra Ballard, Beverly Broughton, Laura Follett, Kim

The Hallan and Jeannette Thompson competed in the Little Miss Clementine division.

Top honors were won by eleven - year - old Jeannette Thompson who was wearing a print "Sunday - go - to - meeting" dress trimmed with pink and blue. Authentic accessories included a Mary Todd Lincoln parasol and black, high-topped, high-heeled laced shoes.

The two entrants in the men's division were both authentically dressed as a gambler of the 1880s, complete with black derby hat, mustache on his lip and a few extra aces tucked into his belt.

John Kurlander wore the costume of a working rancher, including a cow hair vest, bat-wing chaps and spurs. He wore an authentic Colt .44 in his holster, and carried a Winchester rifle. Kurlander took the honors in the men's division.

Entrants in the Best Couple division were Betty Wiggins and Jud Preston, and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Miller who were dressed as Indians.

The "squaw" was carrying a

Mrs. Callanan wore a hand-made white lace and chiffon dress dating from the 1880's and Mrs. Callanan dark trousers and a bronze brocade vest.

Contestants in the Mrs. Clementine division were Donna Hodgdon, Joan Shaw-Osborne and Ida Bell Thompson.

Mrs. Callanan won the award for the most authentic costume in this division, altered by a gambler's wife from a man's frock coat. Mrs. Callanan also competed in the Little Miss Clementine division.

Contestants in the Miss Clementine division were Anna Belle Kammerer, who wore a pink calico print dress with trim and one of the children's hats and a wide-brimmed doll carriage. The children were all dressed in period costume.

There was only one entry in the "Best Bathing Suit" category, a full-length suit designed and modeled by Sandee Weis-linger. It was of black cotton satin trimmed with white lace, featuring a working ruffle, bloomers and a lace-trimmed parasol.

Entrants in the "Best Family Group" were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Boring and their seven children, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Callanan with their two young-sters, and Jan Reberger and Claude Miller who were dressed as Indians.

The "squaw" was carrying a baby wrapped in an Indian blanket that was almost twice as large as she.

The winners in this category were the Boring family. Boring had been an entry in the men's division, attired in a gambler's costume and his second appearance, followed by his wife and seven children, drew a hearty laugh from the crowd.

Mrs. Boring was wearing a calico print dress with brown trim and one of the children's hats and a wide-brimmed doll carriage. The children were all dressed in period costume.
