

Union Urges S.B. to Stop Noxious Odors Recruiting Offices Swamped S.B. Youths Respond to Increased Draft

A 200-member labor union this week demanded that the City of San Bernardino eliminate noxious odors from the sewage treatment plant in the southern part of the city.

The union said that visitors entering from the south are greeted by a miasmic rank of stench and foul odors on the right.

"At the same time that we are gaining national recognition as a viable county, we're getting an undesirable reputation as a stinking city. We want a dignified city with a clean stench," said Rep M. Wilson.

Wilson said the union is holding a meeting on the subject Friday night.

"We, too, are working on it," said Councilman Robert L. Henley.

"It was taken out of my hands by the city," said Councilman Robert L. Henley.

"Who did you bring the subject up? I had my business associates being well informed."

Two Transients Charged With Assault; One Freed

Two transients from Georgia yesterday were held in arraignment on charges of assault with a deadly weapon.

Police Officer G. K. B. Dwyer said the two men were charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Municipal Court Judge Margaret J. Merris dismissed charges against another transient.

However, married men with one dependent a year or more are exempt from the draft.

Those married men who are exempt from the draft are exempt from the draft.

"That I belonged to a highway association, I used to be in the office, too, you know."

"You have to make your organization known," he added, "and recognized as friends. The highway commission is friendly along the freeway route."

"Many think you're signing your wheels with the highway commission, but it's not true. It's just a sign of respect."

"As long as you try to help them, the reciprocity is there. It's a mutual benefit to the association, urging financial support from the cities and industry along the freeway route."

"We need spending money — about $4,000 to $4,500 for representation in Sacramento to assist unrepresented activity where the freeway is started," he said.

"The funds are necessary. This groundbreaking is the first step, association press is said."
